Far Reaching Effects

Then the spirit symbolized by the famous statue of the Goddess of Laberty, presented to us by a great nation in appreciation of our worth as a free and beneficial country, would not only enlighten the world in which we live but its psychical and my-tical nower would reach far beyond to the other planets, for as it is proven that the other planets effect us no do we offert them. They have a duty towards them.

And what greater and more lasting glory could a nation ask than to be blessed with God given power to accomplish this universe-reaching beneficence?

Consistent with what I have said, blessed with God given nower to accomplish this universe-reaching be beforence?

Consistent with what I have said, it seems to me that the good of mankind, and particularly the unity and preservation of our own nation, can be infinitely better subserved by joining all the strongest minds and purest hearts in a plan calling on every neutral nation on earth, and arrange for and insist upo a plan of disarmament that will insure lasting peace rather than to take chances in the heated and dangerous struggle that confronts us in the discussion for and against preparedness.

There is much logic and dangerous struggle that confronts us in the discussion for and against preparedness. There is much logic and plausibility on both sides of the argument, but it looks like an imporsible task at this time to find men wise enough to unite both sides. (now when unity is more imperatively demanded than at any other time in the history of the nation)—on the soundness and wisdom of either plan.

Speaking of the good or bad of money, many close their minds with the idea that "money is a necessary evil," thereby implying that it cannot be good. I radically disagree with such a view. There is no necessary such a view of the developing our date, for the good we can do, for the uplifting of the good we can engender, for the uplifting of the good we can promote, for the uplifting of mankind on every side in good order."

So, with these facts staring us in but it is not necessary. Money, as face, we should grasp the enormicalled, is man's commodity or medium of exchange, and a powerful agent. It is either a curse or a blessing; all depends upon how it is used.

As we go along the path in our national life, we must bear in mind that in nation - building, it is imperative that we should ward off moral disease which is more insidious and dangerous than any physical malady, for it af-the life of nations which is a great deal longer than that of individuals. Physical disease kills the body only, while moral disease de-stroys the soil one of the coundest principles of the Christian doctrine.

Race Prejudice Vicious. Now let us get back home, and open our eyes to the corroding influence of this vicious tendency of race preparite that never yet has uplifted
